

SECTO DESIGN BACK AT DESIGN POST

Secto Design returns to Design Post Köln with an extended collection after a few years break.

Secto Design is a Finnish family owned company specialized in handmade wooden design lighting. Birch, the national tree of Finland, is a perfect material for the Secto Design lamps. It is available in the nearby certified forests and reflects light well due to its lightness.

Sustainability has always been the foundation of the Secto Design lamps. “The ecological way of operating comes so naturally to us here in Finland that originally we didn’t even consider environmental friendliness as a value as such”, comments the founder of the company Tuula Jusélius. “Nowadays, as these values are widely recognized, we have decided to communicate this side even more.”

Secto Design lamps are made by hand from PEFC certified birch in the small town of Heinola in Finland. The entire collection comes with LEDs and the plastics in the packaging have been reduced to the minimum. The company has invested in Finnish start-ups addressing the environmental challenges by developing plastic free packing materials. During last year, the carbon foot print of the production was researched thoroughly and a LCA – Life Cycle Assessment will be completed this year.

The Kuulto ceiling lamp is one of models that represent the newer production in addition to the classic collection at the Design Post stand. The Kuulto ceiling lamp comes in two sizes. Kuulto is a versatile space saver that can be used both on the ceilings and on the walls. Kuulto works well on its own but thanks to its modular nature it can also be used for creating larger surfaces, rows or other artistic combinations.

The versatile Petite product line, the innovative Secto corner lamp and the sculptural Teelo table lamp add even more choice to the lighting range. Thanks to the same unique visual language the entire collection of the 29 lights share, it is possible to freely combine different models and create inspirational installations of one’s own.

The award-winning architect Seppo Koho has designed all Secto Design lamps. The beloved lighting collection has been inspired by Nordic nature and the play between light and shadow. To ensure the authenticity, each Secto Design lamp comes with a hologram label.
